Murderer hangs himself

Mafikeng – A murder suspect was found hanging in a tree on Wednesday (9 February 2011) near Mmabatho, North West police said on Friday. "Murder suspect William Moathodi, 45, was facing a murder count for brutally killing his ex-girlfriend but was found dead on Wednesday hanging by his neck with a wire in a tree," said spokesperson Adele Myburgh. "There was no foul play suspected and no note was found."

On Tuesday Moathodi appeared in court. This incident took place after the suspect had requested to leave the court room while waiting for his case to be called on the roll. He "politely" asked an investigating officer if he could leave to buy food.

"He was granted permission as he was legally out on bail, awaiting trial, and not in police custody," said Myburgh. He did not return to the court and a warrant for his arrest was issued.

The following day, his body was found by a local Shepard in a bush in the Magalelo village. He was facing a murder charge after allegedly chopping off his 39-year-old girlfriend's head, hands and legs with a shovel in December 2010. An Inquest Docket was opened. The matter is still under Police investigation.

No place to hide - Fugitive nabbed at match

Rustenburg – A man wanted in connection with breaking into cash vaults was arrested at a soccer match in Rustenburg, the Hawks said on Monday. The Hawks believe they may have rounded up all the members of a dangerous cash vault robbery syndicate after this arrest. Spokesperson McIntosh Polela said Samson Malapane was arrested while watching the Kaizer Chiefs match against Platinum Stars at the Royal Bafokeng Sports Palace in Phokeng outside Rustenburg on Sunday. "One of our members was sitting next to him. He recognised him and informed us who he was sitting next at the stadium," he said. "The two of them happened to be sitting together and we are very proud of this member who decided to waste no time because we've been looking for this guy for two weeks."

Malapane appeared in the Grastfontein Magistrate's Court on Monday, and was transported to Polokwane to face a charge of armed robbery. He is also a suspect in a separate murder case. "He had been on the run since his co-accused was arrested early this month [February]," he said.

In need of a Clean-Up

Rustenburg – The Rustenburg Rate Payers Association have been talking about illegal practices under the railway bridge since last year, however nothing gets done about it.

Every Tom, Dick and Harry uses the public space for servicing the vehicles of their customers. It is a very dangerous situation as all the oil gets dumped on the ground and runs everywhere including into the waste water system.

Who will take responsibility for any claims from the residents and business owners, should a fire spread and destroy buildings and property of the nearby houses and businesses? The authorities could face millions of Rands in claims because of ignorance and not doing anything about this matter which was already reported in March 2010, and thereafter in subsequent meetings. It is also a health hazard as there are no toilets or ablution facilities available for these illegal workers/businesses.

We would appreciate if the authorities responsible for this public space would CLEAN UP this unwanted and dangerous situation. Regards, Johan de Klerk, Secretary Rustenburg Rate Payers Association 082 891 3912.
